TAXPAYERS WANT A BRIDGE TO COST LESS THAN $12,000 ACROSS MOHICAN RIVER IN TIVERTON-TP

Declaring that the erection of a bridge across the Mohican river in Tiverton-tp to replace the Spurgeon bridge, which was washed out by the 1913 flood, will not cost $12,000 because the taxpayers will be satisfied with a cheaper one, G. F. Ridenbaugh of Buckeye City, in a signed communication sets forth some arguments in favor of the new bridge.

He says that without the bridge, it is necessary for some residents to go as far as eight miles to reach Tiverton Center, where all the township business is transacted. The voting precincts, the town hall and the township high school are all located there.

From the Chestnut Ridge school which is opposite the site of the proposed bridge, it is four and one half miles by road to the Cavallo bridge, and three miles to the Walhonding bridge according to Ridenbaugh. Before the Spurgeon bridge was washed out it was possible for high school pupils from any place in the township to reach the building under a distance of four miles, but now some have to go eight miles he says. The township must pay transportation for high school pupils going farther than four miles to school.

From the Chestnut Ridge school Ridenbaugh says it is three miles to the nearest elementary school. Transcription (Continued on Page Ten)

Since his appointment in 1919 he has acted as service director, safety director, and city engineer, at a salary of $2,100 a year. His services were not considered satisfactory by the councilmen who passed out of office the first of this year, and during the (Continued on Page Eight)

TWO BOYS ARE ON PROBATION SINCE THEFT OF MOTOR

Paul Guenther, 16, who was arrested early in the week charged with taking an electric motor from the rear of the Harry Heaton store on Main-st., was declared delinquent by probate court authorities and released on probation.

His story of finding the motor in the alley at the rear of the store was found to be true by the court.

Ralph Veeley, 12, was arrested for and pleaded guilty to taking the motor from the washing machine in which it belonged. He told the court that he took the motor home, and was persuaded by his brother to return it. Fearing to take it to the store he dropped it in the alley nearby. Later he told the Guenther boy of the incident, and the latter went into the alley and picked up the motor.

Veeley was given a sentence similar to the one imposed on Guenther.

THREE ARRESTED FOR DABBLING IN FORBIDDEN JUICE

Three arrests on liquor law violation charges were made Saturday afternoon by Chief of Police Ray Duling and Officer George Proutage.

As a result, Charles Hall is awaiting trial, under $1,000 bond, on a charge of transporting intoxicating liquor. Mike Soudles of south Second-st., will be sent to the Canton workhouse unless he pays a fine of $1,000 assessed on a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor, and Martin Holmes is under a suspended sentence of $100 given him on a charge of manufacturing intoxicating liquor.

Hall and Soudles were arrested at the Soudles home on Second-st. and a suitcase containing three quarts and a half pint of corn whiskey was confiscated.

Hall had the key to the suitcase. Soudles had the half pint bottle of the liquor in his pocket.

When arraigned before the mayor, Hall pleaded not guilty to the charge of transporting the liquor. The date of his hearing was set for Thursday, April 6, and he was placed in the city prison, in default of $1,000 bond. Soudles pleaded guilty to the charge of possessing the intoxicating liquor and was assessed the $1,000 which he was unable to pay.

A four gallon jar of fermenting fruit juice was found at the home of Martin Holmes and he was charged with manufacturing intoxicating liquor. He pleaded ignorance of the condition of the juice, and was released under a suspended sentence of $100 and costs.

Improvements In Country Club Are Being Discussed

Extensive plans for improvements in the home of the Coshocton Town and Country Club, the new organization which recently purchased the old site of the Country Club, were discussed at a meeting of the board of governors held Friday evening.

George Gray, chairman of the ground committee, outlined a number of changes and improvements in the club golf course. He announced that John E. Aronhalt, former custodian of the club grounds would resume his old duties in that capacity under the new organization. Aronhalt during the past winter has been caring for a golf course in Florida.

An indoor dancing floor is among the improvements planned for the club house. In the past, dancing has been done exclusively on the veranda of the club house. Inclement weather often interfered with the amusement.

It is also planned to enlarge the dining capacity of the club, to accommodate a greater number of guests. Architectural plans for the improvements were submitted to the governors at the meeting, and are expected to be approved as they stand. It is hoped to have the remodeling finished in time to open on the usual date, Decoration Day.

WALKOUT IN COUNTY IS COMPLETE, SAYS LOCAL UNION HEAD

The walkout of the Coshocton miners was as far as could be learned Saturday, 100 per cent effective, according to a report from James R. McCormick of the miners' union Saturday night.

To the best of his knowledge, he said, not a mine in the county, was working Saturday or would be working Monday.

A meeting of all the county wagon miners and the officials of the miners' union has been called for Monday night, at the Coshocton hotel.

At this time arrangements will be made to allow delivery of coal to schoolhouses, the city hospital, churches and other public buildings, McCormick said. The greater part of this business is cared for by the smaller mines, known as wagon mines exclusively.

David Watkins, president of the district union, John Owens, vice-president, and J. W. Callahan secretary, will be among the union officials.

Responsibility For Strike Is Placed At Door Of The Union Miners By Terre Haute Coal Operator In Statement—Siege Tactics Mark Opening Of Battle In Which Half Million Workmen Are Interested Vitaly

INDIANAPOLIS, April 1.—Expressing full confidence that the United Mine Workers will emerge from the nation wide coal strike with a decisive victory, officials of the miners' union tonight looked back with gratification on what they consider a "good days work."

They saw the launching of the greatest strike in the industrial history proceed without a hitch. They saw the 115,000 hard coal miners on strike for the first time in a national wide walkout. They saw the more than half million union coal miners of the United States and Canada drop their tools in unison, and they saw the rank and file of the mine workers' organization present a solid front in resistance of the coal operators' announced program of wage slashing.

Only two slight instances of violence have marred the machine-like walkout of the army of miners.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Entire responsibility for the strike that today had the miners' coal mines closed (Continued on Page Eight)

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. CLARK AT WARSAW TUESDAY

The body of Mrs. Riley E. Clark, aged 39, who died at a Columbus hospital Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the effects of an operation for goitre, arrived at the local Pennys depot Saturday noon and was taken to the home of the mother, Mrs. Matthew Crawford, in Warsaw.

The funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the M. E. church in Warsaw with the Rev. Everal McBroom, pastor of that church, officiating. Burial will be made in Valley View cemetery.

Mrs. Clark's maiden name was Miss Frances May Crawford. She was born and reared on a farm near Warsaw. Her father, Matthew Crawford, who preceded her to the grave three years ago was formerly a commissioner in this county.

Mrs. Clark was a staunch Christian, having become affiliated with the Warsaw M. E. church early in her life. She retained her membership in the Warsaw M. E. church throughout her life. She was a woman of estimable qualities. A wide circle of friends will mourn her loss.

For the past two years Mrs. Clark has been afflicted with goitre. She is survived by her husband and one son, Ned Clark, 10, of Columbus. Her mother, Mrs. Crawford and one sister, Mrs. James Walker, live at Warsaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark moved from Warsaw to Columbus more than a year ago.

HOSFELT IS FINED FOR TOTTING KNIFE

Judgment in the case of Martin Hosfelt, charged with carrying concealed weapon, was pronounced Saturday afternoon when Mayor W. S. Tish declared Hosfelt guilty of the charge and assessed a fine of $75 and costs.

Hosfelt, then his attorney, C. Homer Durand, submitted his motion on carrying the case into the common pleas court on error.

The case was heard several days ago. Altho he admitted carrying an 18-inch candy knife for protection, Hosfelt denied having the weapon concealed. Declaring that he and his brother had been previously attacked by members of the molders and core-makers' union, as a result of labor trouble at the Clow plant, Hosfelt said he had been unable to get immediate police protection, and therefore carried the knife.

CAPACITY HOUSE IS ENTERTAINED AT THE WARSAW AUDITORIUM

Considered a big success in every respect the Coshocton Belvedere minstrels delighted a capacity house in Frederick hall, auditorium at Warsaw, Friday night.

The cast acquitted itself creditably. Despite the inclement weather the house was jammed and many were forced to stand up.

The comedy work was in charge of Jack Berlin, Carl Berlin, Grant Thomas and Kenneth Slaughter—all black-face comedians. Carl Nelson, rube comedian and Dave Morrison, the Scotch comedian. They kept the audience vibrating constantly. Elmer Tankersley, the chief of the gypsy camp, essayed the role of interlocutor in the minstrel first part.

The jokes went over big because Warsaw citizens were used in them. The mayor, marshal, physicians, garage men, and other citizens of Warsaw did not escape being mentioned in the wizzes used by the comedians.

The human violin and other impersonations were used by Slaughter in the first part.

The Belvedere Minstrels will show in Plainfield in the near future.

A radio-phone entertainment will be given at Frederick hall this evening by the Warsaw community circle.

SOLOIST DELIGHTS CONCERT AUDIENCE

Miss Ruth Bolen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bolen, 1145 east Chestnut-st, who is well known in local musical circles, appeared to a good advantage, Friday evening, when she was presented in a recital at the First Baptist church.

Possessing a clear, rich contralto voice, Miss Bolen delighted a large audience with her selections. The "Little Damsel," by Novello and "Boats of Mine," by Miller were probably her most popular selections. However her group of "Indian Love Songs," by Sinden, "Winter Memories," by Brown, "Twilight," by Teasdale, "Little Boy Blue," by Olson and "Friedrich Flower," by Campbell Tinton's composition, were also heartily received. Her aria, "People Victorious," Parker and the aria from "Samson and Delilah," by Saint Saens, grouped among the classical music, were especially well given.

William Vogel, who together with Miss Bolen, is studying at Denison University, Granville, ably assisted in the recital last evening, accompanying Miss Bolen at the piano. His group of instrumental selections displayed clear technique and real artistic ability. These numbers were also favorably received by the audience.

Miss Bolen and Mr. Vogel will present three concerts during the coming week in Pennsylvania.

JEWELL CONTENDS BIG CORPORATIONS OWN THE COUNTRY

CHICAGO, April 1.—A small group of powerful corporations today control the jobs of nearly all American workers and fix the pay rolls of American industry. These interests control the prices of basic materials to such an extent that they can lock out consumers. Thus they can strangle industry either by maintaining prices which are entirely out of proportion to the level of wages or by cutting the spending power of labor as a consumer thru big reductions in pay rolls.

B. M. Jewell, president, railway employees' department, A. F. of L., offered statistics to establish the above facts. In his argument before the United States railway labor board for an increase in wages of shop craft employees, Jewell contends that his men are not now receiving a living wage and that railway wage increases will be immense benefit to farmers, shop keepers and workers in other industries through their effect on the purchasing power of the nation.

The shop crafts spokesman says that industry rightly run can afford a living wage to all workers and of fered figures to show that a small group is squeezing down wages for its special benefit, thereby imposing hardships on millions not in their employ.

By 1914, Jewell said, 80 percent of the industrial jobs were controlled by corporations, although they constituted less than three-tenths of the total number of industrial establishments in the country. The same census figures (the latest available) show that between 1904 and 1914 an increasing number of the jobs were controlled by corporations with product valued at more than $1,000,000 per year.

Reduced to other terms, in 1914 approximately one-seventeenth of the total number of industrial establishments in the country controlled over 35 percent of all the industrial jobs. The value of the product of these firms was nearly half of the total value produced by all the manufacturing plants of the country.

The concentration of job control is still more marked, for while 63 percent of all the establishments employ only 4.5 percent of the nation's wage earners, seven one-thousandth of the establishments employ 31 percent of the workers.

"Interlocking directorships and manufacturers' associations of such corporations are thus in a key position from which to dictate the general employment policy of the country. Even closer association with credit agencies, mines and railroads renders the unit a practical dictatorship of the commercial group," Jewell said.

"It is a well known fact that control of a market can be maintained without either complete ownership or even the ownership of over one-half."

"The ability of those who control the jobs to force producers to bear the burden of deflation is what intensifies and prolongs the periods of depression and unemployment. Mainly the purchasing power of the workers and industry will prosper. As it is, the employees of industry must carry the burden in lowered living standards and the farmer cannot market his crops or the merchant sell his goods."

"When the demand for corporation products declines the corporations close down their plants and continue to pay fat livings out of accumulated surpluses. When the demands for human labor declines and a buyer's market develops, families are asked to bid against each other to see which will accept the lowest standard of living."

"The price policy of the United States Steel corporation seems to indicate clearly that corporations with a monopoly of jobs and huge surpluses can manipulate the labor market to suit their purposes."

B. C. Forbes, oracle of big business, said in his magazine March 19, 1921, "In the highest financial and industrial circles, vigorous recovery is not desired until wages have been brought down in all industries, on the railroads and in other walks of life. . . . Only in rare cases are bankers encouraging manufacturing or mercantile clients to go ahead and place heavy contracts for future requirements. Banks, as a rule, are entirely in sympathy with the movement to force liquidation of labor as part and parcel of the whole readjustment process."

"In a market so dominated or controlled there is no guarantee, in fact, no probability, that just and reasonable wages will be established," Jewell said. "The whole course of the recovery of the country from depression might have been different if the United States Steel corporation had not had an enormous surplus."

FOUR POWER PACT VOTE COST MANY SOLONS HEAVILY

WASHINGTON, April 1.—"That roll call ought to be good for a dozen seats, at least, I think."

It was Senator La Follette who called out this cheery observation to Senator Johnson, during the slaughter of amendments to the four-power treaty on the senate floor, before the treaty was finally ratified.

Johnson, whose seat in the senate was probably saved by his fight against this treaty, knew, as La Follette knew, that a large number of senators whose terms expire in 1923 and 1925, and who voted down these amendments and ratified the treaty, cast these votes at the sacrifice of their political futures.

Williams, Mississippi, veteran Democrat, treaty supporter, will not seek reelection. Vandenberg, driven from the senate in 1918 by the White House machine, personally directed by Woodrow Wilson, will replace him.

Trammell, Florida, seeking renomination this year, got his notice immediately from Tom Watson, Georgia, who wields a powerful influence in Florida.

Ponderosa, Washington, Republican, added support of the treaty to his record as a supporter of New Deal and as an advocate of anti-railroad bill. He is considered politically dead.

Dial, South Carolina textile magnate and banker will not try for renomination.

Twelve Democrats voted for the treaty. It is probable that most of them had tariff advantages in view when making up their minds. The majority of stock in Dutch Shell, and Broussard, represent sugar. Underwood, Alabama, is spokesman for steel and iron interests. Steel and iron always want a high tariff. The Tennessee Coal & Iron Co., and other steel interests operating in Democratic territory are likewise anxious to get an arrangement which shall promote their business in the orient.

Oil played a part, too, as a study of the treaty support will show, and copper was only slightly less active. The four-power treaty seems to be the vehicle for an understanding between the Standard Oil and the Dutch Shell interests, whereby the destructive features of the race between them will be eliminated, and they will divide up the exploitation of the remaining petroleum resources of the earth.

Britain's admiralty office controls the majority of stock in Dutch Shell. Tariff, oil, steel, textiles, copper—these are realities back of the professional politicians' zeal for the four-power treaty.

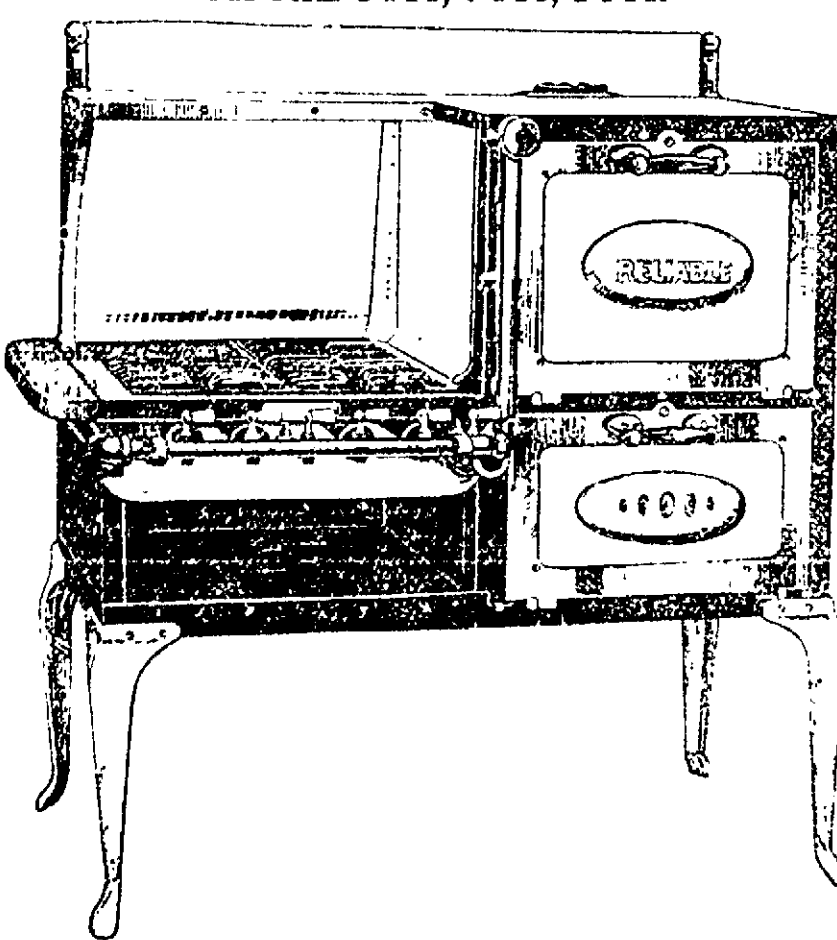

Today the handful of senators who made the fight against this combination of the dominant military powers of the earth are happy; they believe that they have drawn an issue of the reactionaries now in the upper branch.

Among these they count Underwood, Pomerehne of Ohio, Myers of Montana, Dial, Williams, Jones of New Mexico, McKellar of Tennessee, and at least one of the two Louisiana senators, on the Democratic side.

On the Republican side the plucking will be even more general, if the judgment of these insurgents is to be taken.

HOUSING CONDITIONS IN NEW YORK FIERCE

NEW YORK, April 1—Housing conditions in New York City in 1921 were so bad that more than one-third of a million renters were driven to the courts for relief.

The figures are set forth, exactly in a report by a committee of municipal court judges on "general welfare." Dealing with rent litigation since the enactment of the state emergency rent laws on April 1, 1920, the report notes the striking increases of such legal actions over the years 1919 and 1920. The number of families actually forced by the extortionate greed of landlords to seek protection under the rent laws in 1921 was 361,345.

That figure shows an increase of 47 percent over the year 1920. It might seem that the 1920 rent legislation, under which most of these cases were brot, was unusually "favorable" to the tenants. It was, perhaps, "unusual." But how, and in what way?

Bolted down, this legislation passed by the legislature grudgingly and for no reason other than that the lawmakers feared the political consequences to themselves if they opposed it, merely says that except in certain special instances, no tenant shall be dispossessed from his residence so long as he is willing to pay his landlord a reasonable rent—even the he may have been practically forced into an agreement to pay an exorbitant rent. And the law designated the municipal courts as the arbiters of what is a "reasonable rent."

In general, and in far the greater number of cases brot under this law, the municipal courts have rendered decisions regarded as fair and satisfactory.

SUSPENSION JUNE 1 IS ANTICIPATED IN GARMENT INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, April 1—Indications are that June 1 will witness the beginning of another strike or lockout in the garment industry. The proposed investigation into the whole garment industry in all its phases, which was to have been conducted under the direction of Secretaries Davis and Hoover, by chosen representatives of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union and the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Assn., has been definitely called off and the union now is bending its energies to strengthening its finances by the collection of the $1,000,000 defense reserve recently decided upon.

The failure of the proposed investigation was caused by the refusal of the employers' organization to enter the negotiations in any spirit or in any manner which could have resulted in a real investigation. The union, as requested by the two cabinet members designated its representatives of the proposed board, and immediately the manufacturers' body seized the opportunity to evade the inquiry by attacking one of the union's designated representatives, Dr. Isaac Hourwich. They refused flatly to enter an investigation in which they had informed Davis and Hoover they would accept the proposal "without limitation either as to the scope of the investigation or as to the personnel of the commission."

Last year, with the existing contract still having until June 1 to run, the local cloak and suit and skirt manufacturers attempted to break the agreement and force a return to piece work and sweatshop conditions. After a power strike the union won a complete victory. Now, with the contract about to expire, they are preparing again to smash the union. The employers are making plans not only to cut wages, restore the sweatshop and return to piece work, but to end collective bargaining and scrap all the machinery for the adjustment of shop disputes.

The situation will be, probably, the most important matter to be taken up at the sixteenth convention of the I. L. G. W. U. in Cleveland on May 1.

Appendix Removed

Miss Grace Strode, 421 North Fifteenth-st., underwent an operation at the City Hospital Saturday for the removal of her appendix. The operation was performed by Dr. Lister Pomerehne, Dr. J. G. Smalles and Dr. E. C. Carr.

NUXATED IRON. It is the therapeutic blood iron in your blood that takes up oxygen from your lungs. This oxygenated organic iron unites with your digested food as it is absorbed into your blood, like fire unites with coal or wood, and by so doing it creates tremendous power and energy. Without organic iron in your blood your food merely passes through your body without doing you any good. Organic iron, like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples may be had from any druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron. Over four million people are using Nuxated Iron annually, their experience proving that it increases the strength and endurance of the weak nervous, run down people, in many cases, in two weeks' time. If you want that virile force, that stamina and strength so necessary to great success in practically every undertaking in life, you owe it to your self to commence trying Nuxated Iron today.

GREEN AND LEWIS ARE RELEASED ON OWN RECOGNIZANCE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 1—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and William Green, secretary treasury of the union were released on their own recognizance by Judge Anderson in federal court today, when they promised to appear voluntarily when over the government's case against more than 200 miners' officials and coal operators under indictment for conspiracy to violate the Sherman anti-trust act is called for trial.

The miners leaders had been under $10,000 bond each for over a year. Several other officers, including Ellis Searles, editor of the mine workers' journal, four Brazil, Ind. men, and six or eight from western Penna. are to be freed from their bonds, it was learned. Judge Anderson already has freed a number of operators from their bonds.

LABOR MEMBER FOR GOVERNMENT WORK

OTTAWA, Can., April 1. If work cannot be found for men at productive occupations in Canada, then they should be maintained by the government until such time as work could be obtained, asserted J. S. Woodsworth, labor member for Winnipeg, in his first speech in the house of commons.

Woodsworth pointed out that the natural resources of the country were largely alienated; that the free lands of the northwest were no longer available, millions of acres being held out of use by speculators; mining properties were controlled by large corporations. He claimed that the state must provide for those it had permitted to be dispossessed.

INDIANA STRIKES

INDIANAPOLIS, April 1.—The thirty thousand miners of Indiana are idle today, making the strike 100 per cent effective in districts number eight and eleven. Reports from the Evansville Linton, Bicknell and Brazil block mining regions indicate that to the last man the mine workers have dropped their picks and shovels in preparation for what they believe will be a prolonged suspension.

The Rape of the Lock. "He has invented a long story out of a single and not very interesting fact," writes Henry T. Tuckerman of "The Rape of the Lock," by Pope, "and he has told his tale in language the most choice, and rhymes the most correct. The poem is like the fruits and flowers of precious stones set in the exquisite pietra dura tables of Italy—clear, fanciful, rarely combined, but unwarmed with any glow of nature, and better calculated to awaken admiration than excite sympathy."

CHURCH LEAGUE IS ACTIVE IN DEFENSE OF LABOR'S RIGHTS

CHICAGO, April 1. Public challenge by the church to the capitalists behind the "open shop" drive in Chicago has been issued by the Church League for Industrial Democracy in half page advertisements in the daily press, signed by the Rev. Richard W. Hoague, executive secretary, 500 S. Halsted St.

"Daily and copiously the public is being fed with stories of the crimes of labor," the church league says.

The employers, it declares, "try to spend their millions in the pleasure resorts of California, Florida, Atlantic City, Switzerland, while those without whose labor they could not be fed or clothed hunt in vain for work and with their families, face starvation."

"Yet on all sides organized labor is being indicted for the occasional acts of men made desperate in the struggle for primary human rights. "Labor is not free from men who are bad and corrupt. But are there none such among those holding positions of security and wealth? It is a matter of common knowledge that there are.

"Why then are not 'both sides' investigated in Chicago as they have been through Mr. Lintermyer and the Lockwood committee in New York?"

"Several million American workers stand deprived of the right to labor for the support of their families. Their

The Political Farce-Comedy In Washington

THAT the breach is widening between the legislative and executive departments of the present administration is apparent despite the efforts of those who try to make discord sound like the sweetest harmony.

The executive, Mr. Harding, has openly and repeatedly charged the house with lack of co-operation. The house answers by new offenses and additional instances of its willingness to defy the white house program. To the observant citizen back home it must appear that at times the legislative department is justified in its defiance of the president's plainly expressed wishes and again that it is the same foolish, leaderless mob that has obstructed the transaction of public affairs at the expense of our own and the world's business for the last three years.

When the President accuses congress with lack of co-operation he is monkeying with political dynamite. The question may aptly be asked when has the president consulted with congress on fundamental issues? Whose advice is it that the white house depends upon in making its decisions? From the outset of the Harding administration his advisers have not been the elected representatives of the people, but the men at the head of the big private financial institutions in New York.

We are not stating this as a criticism of the President, but as a fact. The Harding regime did not win the 1920 election thru misrepresentation. There was no deception practiced on an unsuspecting electorate. The whole Republican campaign of that year was conducted frankly and above board. It was known in September, 1920, two months after Mr. Harding was nominated, that if he won the election it would be a victory for the big employers over organized labor; that a revenue tariff would be replaced by a tariff law of the Dingley-McKinley-Aldrich type; that it would be the policy of the administration to raid the remaining natural resources of the nation for the benefit of powerful private interests and at the expense of the conservation projects so laboriously built up by Roosevelt and maintained by Wilson; that ship subsidies and similar subventions for great aggregations of capital would be looked upon with favor once more in Washington; in short, that the election of Senator Harding would frankly be the signal for a start backward to the days of Hanna and Quay.

There could be no possible misunderstanding on all these and many other similar points. To his credit the President came clean in his campaign speeches, in his inaugural address and in his various communications to congress. Whether the people got what they wanted, they at least were apprised in advance of what they were going to get. So it comes in poor taste now from congressional leaders to accuse the President of double dealing and treachery. He has never stood with honest, but probably misguided leaders in public life who at least are putting up the appearance of proposing legislation which will meet with public approval, but rather with those powerful interests who openly and unscrupulously backed his candidacy from the start with a frank and plain understanding that if they elected him they, and not the people, would get what THEY wanted.

The answer to this paradoxical situation is that the people did not want what most of them knew they would get out of a Harding victory, but that they were willing to chance a frankly reactionary regime to a Democratic administration which at best would only put up a weak bluff at opposing the wholesale raids which the present administration is backing with the entire administration machinery.

As it happens Mr. Harding is right in his expressed disapproval of the bonus bill which has passed the house, but which everyone knows will ultimately be killed either by senate procrastination or executive veto. But if the truth were known Mr. Harding is not opposed to the bonus bill because of its apparent and manifold defects, but because Mr. Mellon and New York financiers like him, with whom Mr. Harding has consulted freely since his induction into office, are solidly against it.

Similarly, the president and congress are at loggerheads on the tariff because Mr. Harding has changed his mind a dozen times on the tariff since his nomination solely because his advisers in private life are themselves split wide open on this issue. Mr. Harding has always been an open and consistent advocate of a high protective tariff, but on this as on every other issue, his easy, yielding disposition is as putty in the hands of those who have showed him the way since the day of his nomination.

Again on the military policy of the government is this trait of the President plainly indicated. He is frankly favorable to the armament and munition interests and the army and navy clique which is such a powerful factor behind the scenes in Washington. It is common knowledge that he disapproved the whole idea of an international peace conference from the time of its inception by Senator Borah. But eventually, by sheer force of public sentiment, he was obliged on this proposition to break with the powerful private interests to whom he has always catered. He called the conference, but consistently damned it with faint praise from the beginning. He repeatedly told the people not to expect much from the conference and stated explicitly that it was not called for the purpose of bringing about universal disarmament.

Later, thru the intelligent activities of his Secretary of State, the disarmament conference became the only tangible asset of the first year of his administration and the president and every spokesman for his administration have by pre-concerted agreement touted it as one of the greatest conclaves of history.

Immediately the farmers' bloc saw its opening and declared that if the conference had done as much to secure world peace as the administration leaders claimed for it, what was the use of a navy personnel of 100,000 and a standing army of 250,000? As a result of this reasoning the house has pared down both the army and navy by degrees from the original plans of the private interests who fatten off of war until it is now proposed to maintain an army of only a little more than 100,000 and a navy slightly in excess of 50,000.

The answer to all this discord is that congress at least makes a pretense of justifying its acts on the basis of what it thinks the people want, while Mr. Harding measures his positions by what the powerful private interests that are running the administration think the people ought to have. Out of all these conflicting interests and views it is hard to see how anyone, least of all the president, could hope for harmony instead of discord. In the fight on the army and navy bills, for instance, Mr. Harding is valiantly standing by those private interests that thrive on war simply because he has the successful politician's idea of always remaining true to his friends. In this he lets consistency fly with the winds. If what he claims for the recent disarmament conference is true, why shouldn't congress and the people expect less preparation for war and the resultant lowering of tax rates. Mr. Harding wisely refrains from trying to answer all these perplexing questions, relying on time and the proverbial forgetfulness of the people to pull him thru.

The upshot of it all is that while the house continues leaderless it boldly refuses to accept the leadership of the white house. And while it has little positive legislation to its credit, it remains cocky and defies the President at will. Mr. Harding's friends have repeatedly advocated the use of the big stick, but the best opinion is that he does not possess that useful piece of

All of this political horseplay in Washington might not be worth the space that it takes to tell about it were we really living in normal times. And it might be amusing instead of tragic were not the whole world involved. But it seems apparent to everyone except the principals in the farce that the stabilization of the world's industrial and financial systems depends upon the intelligent, concerted action of the American government. When that can be secured, and not until then, will we once more be on the road back to "normalcy."

FRANCE AND JAPAN

gates that a hard and fast agreement had been made between Tokio and Paris whereby, in return for the support of the Japanese on submarine and other issues, (and for future support on Near Eastern problems) the French were to resist any attempt on the part of the United States to compel the Japanese to evacuate Siberia.

This charge was reinforced by a set of documents said to have been lifted by the Soviet secret service. Both nations hastened to repudiate the documents; and on the face of them they could hardly be read as strictly genuine, for some of the alleged agreements were obviously absurd. It was explained, however, that they had passed through several translations, and they certainly did link up with certain events that could not be denied. They set forth that the two nations had agreed upon a plan whereby the remnants of the Wrangel army were to be taken by the French from Constantinople to Vladivostok to uphold the forces which the Japanese were subsidizing. At the moment in question the Japanese propaganda agencies at Vladivostok and the French ones at Constantinople were both telling of the imminence of such an operation. It did not take place; but that was no fault of the two nations. The Russian soldiers simply refused to go, even when surrounded by French machine guns and artillery; in fact, even after, when some had been killed in what was called a "revolt."

They Did Act Together.

It is true, however, that Japan and France did act together at Washington. When the question of the limitation of submarines came up Japan was found standing firmly by the French contention that this weapon was not to be strictly limited. Britain wanted the submarine abolished, Italy wanted it made practically harmless, and the United States was willing to sacrifice some of its own defensive ideas. But Japan and France blocked strict limitation.

When it came to the consideration of the Siberian issue and the demand of the United States that Japan should give some definite assurance of evacuation, France was found subtly blocking any agreement. In neither case was the issue made so plain that the two nations were compelled to avoid identical positions, but small doubt was left in the minds of close observers that they had some understanding.

And now, in the London conference, we have found them again acting in concert. A curious thing was pointed out by some of the opponents of the four-power Pacific treaty in the Senate debate: That the Anglo-Japanese Alliance has been abandoned but a treaty between France and Japan, practically calling for mutual action in defense of their various interests on the Asiatic mainland, was left in being. The charge was made that the abrogation of the one alliance had merely formed another. And there is a great deal to be said for that theory. Perhaps no new agreement was needed between the two nations.

Drawn Together Logically.

Certainly it would not be strange if Paris and Tokio had made a new Entente. Their interests would draw them logically together. First, the Japanese have long seen that the alliance with the British could not last. Their encroachments on British trade and British spheres of influence in the Far East were arousing strong sentiment among powerful elements in England; and Canada and Australia were taking an attitude against them which was bound to influence the home government. Since the Tokio statesmen do not believe in being isolated they were reaching out for new friends before and during the war.

It is no secret among the well-informed that in the critical months of 1915 and 1916 the British and French were highly fearful that Japan was going over to Germany and might take Russia with her. The secret Shantung and Pacific Islands agreements were made to keep her in line; as was the later Lansing-Ishih agreement.

Secondly, so far as Russia is concerned, both France and Japan desire the overthrow of the Soviet Government. France wants her friends put in power, elements which will not only pay back some of the billions owed to her but which will form a new alliance to safeguard French interests in the East. Japan wants the monarchy restored, not only because the presence of a non-monarchistic neighbor influences her own people against their rulers but because the great concessions she has gained in Siberia have come from the monarchistic groups.

It is to the interest of France that Japan should hold Siberia and continue her intrigues; for, if Siberia were once pacified and ruled by the Moscow autocracy there would be little hope of overthrowing it.

Thirdly—French efforts to weaken the British Empire would be greatly strengthened if the British had to face an unfriendly Japan. Such a Japan could furnish much aid to the dangerous elements in India.

Drive for Latin Friendship.

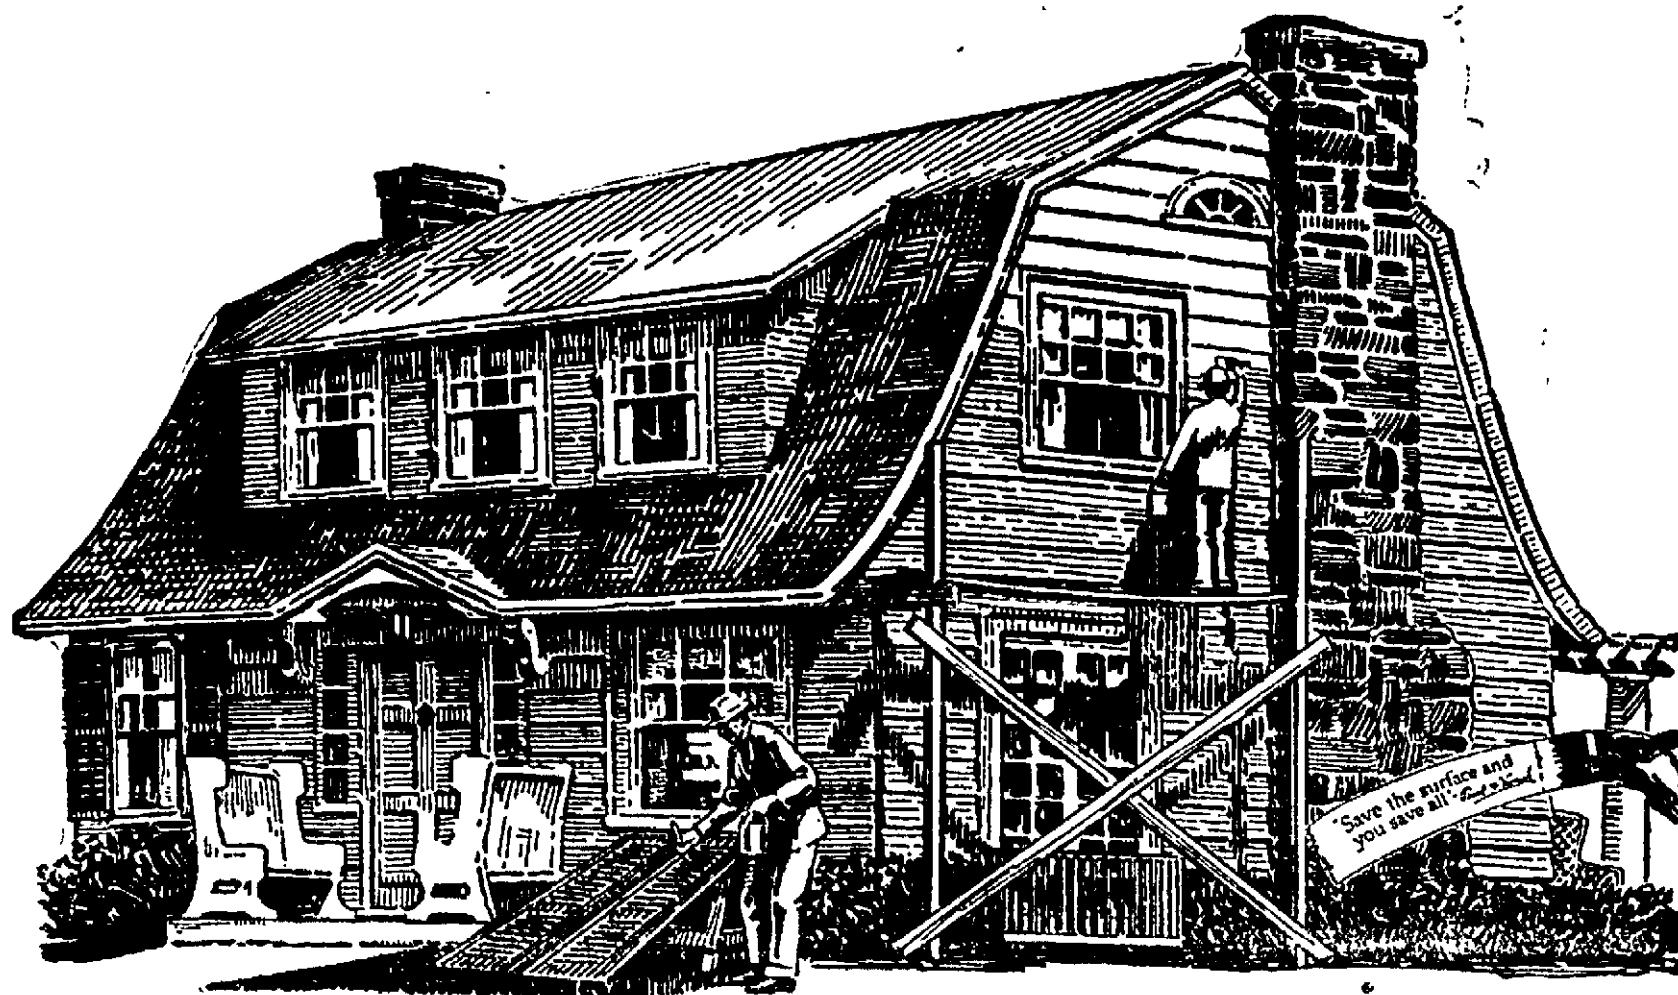

A curious sidelight on this situation is the simultaneous drive the French and Japanese are making for the friendship of the South American and other Latin nations. Marshal Joffre, following his tour of the Latin republics, went to Japan. Various special missions from Tokio and Paris have been sent in succession to South America and trade and other agreements sought.

As I have pointed out before to my readers, France has practically clinched control of the League of Nations by the combination of the Latin members. If she gets the support of Japan, she will have that body completely lined up. Let it be remarked here, that the Japanese representative on the League Council helped to carry out the French policy of giving Poland control of the principal coal mines of Upper Silesia.

The League is likely to be an important factor in the Genoa conference and the settlement of the Near Eastern questions. The French are pressing with all their strength to have it recognized as the arbitral body in all disputes. Already it has been asked to take over the problem of Armenia. It has been nominated as the power to control Constantinople and the disputed Straits. Should France have her way, the League will be made an instrument to break the British grip on some of the most vital portions of the Near East. So a French-Japanese-Latin combination would prove a very formidable affair.

Cynical British Imperialism. Aside from that feature of the secret negotiations going on in preparation for Genoa, we are seeing a remarkable example of the deep cynicism of the British Imperialists. They are proposing to quiet the Turks at the expense of the Greeks.

Greece, as one of the Allies, made huge sacrifices during the war. Afterwards, when the Turks refused to accept the treaty of Versailles and Kemal Pasha showed he was capable of making it warm for the British in Constantinople, the Greeks were encouraged to dream of the restoration of their empire on the mainland.

BEAUTY AND PROTECTION

Plus Lowest Cost Per Square Foot

The retail price of Lucas Tinted Gloss Paint is as high, if not higher, per gallon than any other house paint on the market.

And yet it is actually the lowest priced paint you can buy. There are three important elements that determine the actual cost of paint—so consider them carefully.

First—Thorough and complete grinding in a Lucas factory reduces the pigments to such a fineness that Lucas Tinted Gloss Paint has a covering capacity of nearly double that of ordinary paint. One gallon of Lucas Tinted Gloss Paint will cover 350 to 400 square feet, two coats, while ordinary paint will cover but 250 to 300 square feet, two coats. This immediately reduces the price of Lucas Tinted Gloss Paint to a lower cost per square foot.

Second—The exceptionally high percentage of pure raw linseed oil used in Lucas Tinted Gloss Paint produces a full, even gloss of enduring beauty. Then, the hours of heavy milling that blend the various elements into one perfect paint product assure longer life and greater durability. Thus, Lucas Tinted Gloss Paint costs very much less per year of service.

Third—In painting the average house the paint represents about one-third of the cost, and the labor two-thirds. So that it costs just as much in labor to put on a paint that will last only two or three years as it does to put on a good paint that will give good service five years or longer.

Thus, paints costing less than Lucas Tinted Gloss Paint are actually more expensive. Lucas Tinted Gloss Paint, in Beauty, Spreading Quality, Protection, and Durability, is not an expense. It is an investment.

"I want a CALORIC before I clean house again"

Hundreds of thousands of women, every spring and fall, must face the drudgery of house-cleaning.

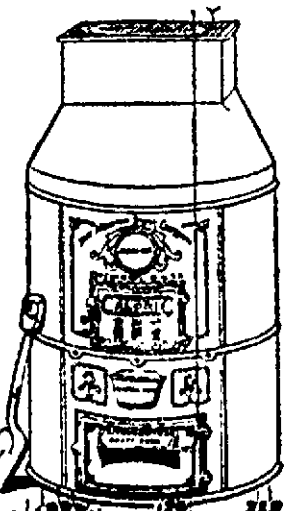

They know that heating stoves and pipe furnaces fill their homes with dirt, and smoke up the curtains and wall paper, and they want to get rid of these out-of-date methods.

The patented Caloric Pipeless Furnace keeps the fuel, kindling and ashes in the basement—and thereby largely eliminates house-cleaning.

We sell the Caloric on the basis of "Satisfaction or money back." A splendid time to get a Caloric is just before you clean house. The next best time is just after you clean house so that your house may stay clean.

See us at once and learn why over 125,000 families in every state in the Union prefer the Caloric to any other method of heating.

of Asia. They were supplied with British munitions and eged on to drive the Kemalists back to a line from which they could no longer threaten Constantinople. In this effort they practically exhausted themselves financially and militarily.

Now it is to the British interest to placate the Turks. As they put it they "have been backing the wrong horse." The Mohammedans of India cannot be pacified until the Turks consent to some sort of peace. So the Greeks are to be sacrificed. Lord Curzon has offered Kemal possession of Asia Minor, under certain safeguards, and a foothold on the European side of the Straits. The Greeks will lose their dream of Empire in Asia and the fruits of all their sacrifices (and Constantinople will probably lose its throne.) But what matters that if the British thereby can hold India?

Redemption of the Senate. Of the greatest importance to the United States in the future conduct of our foreign relations is the redemption of the Senate in the eyes of world statesmen. Their prompt action on some of the most important of the treaties made at the Washington conference has convinced them that, after all, they can have proper dealings with this country.

On the eve of the Arms Congress there was grave cynicism on this point, not only abroad but in this country. The long-drawn out fight on the treaty of Versailles and the evident play of politics in the struggle had caused many to believe that our system must be altered if we were to engage effectively in world statesmanship. But we have seen on the part of many members of the Senate a display of the determination that home politics must stop at the three-mile limit and the precedent thus set will reassure the doubters.

Fact is, the Senate is an efficient body when it is certain of public opinion. In the case of the Versailles treaty there was an almost unprecedented confusion of the public mind and this confusion was mirrored in the debates. In the case, however, of the Arms Congress treaties, public sentiment was clear. Despite the attempts of various elements to confuse the issue, the people evidently trusted our delegation and saw no reason why we should not enter upon the commitments it had undertaken. In these circumstances the Senate gave an exhibition of speed which must have surprised its critics both at home and abroad.

To one who is well acquainted with the ways of that body the result was not a surprise. It often seems to dawdle and spend weeks unnecessarily in debate. But in most cases, when such a delay happens it is only because there is much doubt among members and that a majority cannot be secured one way or another. It is necessary to wait until a formula can be found on which a majority can agree. When that formula is found the Senate acts with a speed which no legislative body can excel. I have sat in the gallery some days and seen bills passed as fast as the clerk could read their titles and the man in the chair could put the formula of the vote. They were the bills that had been agreed upon in the quiet of the cloakrooms. On the Arms Congress treaties, the moment it was evident that the votes were on hand for ratification, we have witnessed the same speed. (Copyright, 1922, By Eugene J. Young.)

FORD'S RAILWAY EARNED $43,000

D. T. & I. Shows Deficit for Last December But Profit For Year

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Earnings statements filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission today by the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton show that for its December operations it had incurred a deficit in operating expenses over revenues of $331,000. This was the first month since its purchase, by Henry Ford, in which it has not shown a profit although its previous career was marked by heavy losses.

Previous monthly earnings, however, brot the road's return for the year under the Ford management into the profit class and for the entire year 1921 its revenues above expenses were fixed at $43,000. Interest on bonded indebtedness is not classed as an operating expense by the commission, and consequently is not reported. Mr. Ford's attempts to reduce rates on the line, which have been under the commission's examination frequently during the year, also were given another rebuff today. An order was issued suspending a freight tariff which the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton proposed to make effective April 1 and by which coal rates in the Ironton district would have been cut ten cents per ton until July 30. The usual investigation to determine whether the cut constituted a discrimination against other producing territory will be instituted meanwhile.

Lowest Priced Six Cylinder Sedan

IN the intense effort of manufacturers to reduce closed car prices, the Cleveland Automobile Company with its impressive sedan has fairly outstripped competitors. This virile and superbly luxurious six costs only $400 more than the Cleveland touring car. This reduction constitutes an amazing achievement.

The average difference, as found by comparing touring car and sedan prices of the 52 leading manufacturers of 5-passenger cars is $754, almost double the Cleveland margin. Only two small fours have a difference as low as $400.

No other real sedan with a six-cylinder motor is priced as low as the Cleveland.

It Is a Genuine Sedan—Not a Compromise

The body is Fisher-built and is comparable in size, finish and luxurious appointment to sedans costing $700 to $900 more. It is as substantial and solid in its construction as it looks.

It is as windproof and rainproof as the highest priced sedans built.

It will remain firm and free from leaks and rattles during many years of luxurious and satisfying service.

It embodies all the features which the experience of the entire industry shows are essential in a fine closed car.

MINERS' UNION

down, was laid at the door of the miners of the country today by Alfred M. Ogle, Terre Haute, coal operator.

"The coal miners violated contractual relations with the operators when they refused to accept invitations extended in every district in the United States where union labor works in the coal mines to negotiate a new agreement," Ogle said. "When the operators and the miners do not together that will be by districts, too, and not on a country wide scale."

All Fools' day passed over America's vast coal fields today and some 5,000 communities were still by the strike of more than 600,000 miners.

In the gigantic walkout launched at one minute past twelve this morning—a walkout which promises to usher in the most titanic labor struggle in history—the miners have begun what their leaders say is a battle to the finish to compel the coal operators to obey a pledge to meet them around the conference board for the adjusting of wages. They are fighting against the announced intention of the mine owners to slash the workers' pay; fighting to retain the check off system, the keystone in the arch of miners' unionism.

Drawn up in battle array on the other hand, is the silent host of operators just as determined as the miners and based on entrenchment, including wages reductions which they have said would reduce the price of coal to the public.

Siege tactics are figuring in the initial stages of the silent struggle.

A social meeting of the Lat-O-Lots has been arranged for Wednesday evening.

It is desired by the social committee that all club members make a special effort to be with us that evening. Just another one of those informal social affairs we all so thoroughly enjoy.

Roulers will please keep in mind their supper party for Thursday evening, and make reservations as soon as possible.

Do you realize that plans for the camp are progressing so well that the things our club girls have dreamed about for two years are actually beginning to look like realities? Mrs. R. M. Love, chairman of the committee on camp furnishings is asking for donations of "loans" of camp cots, chairs, wash stands, mirrors, rugs, lanterns and doll lamps.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry McCleary who are to care for the house and ground will move in within a few days and will soon have the garden planted, anticipating your arrival later in the summer. Everybody happy?

Remember the story hour for the children, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Of course we have arranged for a delightful as well as instructive story for the children—one they surely enjoy. Bring the little folks in to share the hour with us.

At 3:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, the Coshocton club girls meet in the Y. W. rooms. All girls will please be in attendance.

Don't forget Mr. Anderson, of Pittsburgh, Pa., will begin his talk promptly at 7 o'clock, in order not to conflict with any church meetings. Everyone interested in interior decorating and home furnishing will welcome with eagerness the remarks and suggestions Mr. Anderson will bring us.

FIVE GRANGES ARE

our forefathers until the present time. Miss Viola Hiser, of Franklin, spoke at length on "Cooking in Rural Schools." She brot out many important facts connected with cooking in the country schools for noontime luncheon.

Mrs. Howard Lawrence contributed two interesting humorous readings. A speech was said by little Miss Vern Lowery.

Before the close of the program a discussion relative to the payment of the Pomona and subordinate grange dues was heard. Each individual subordinate grange member in the county, is expected to pay to his respective grange 25 cents per year for dues. Twelve cents out of this twenty five cents goes to the state grange.

Twenty four candidates took obligations of the Pomona grange Saturday at the meeting. Some of the members of the degree team were unable to attend the meeting on account of bad roads and sickness. The candidates were given obligations of the fifth degree.

George Stonehocker presided at the meeting and Pomona Lecturer Frank Powell was in charge of the lecture period.

The next Pomona grange meeting will be held at the Franklin grange hall some time in June. The Pomona grange meets quarterly.

RADIO FANS SHOULD

over the country. The greater part of the amateur operators interest themselves in the radio phone concerts only. It is said. Code messages can be received with the same apparatus, and are said to be even more interesting than the average phone messages.

The International Morse code is used, almost universally, altho there are 10 or 11 other codes.

Naturally the question arises, How should the code be learned?

Should the dots and dashes represent the letters be memorized by sight or sound? Local operators say the best way is to take a sending key, and tap off the dots and dashes, learning to distinguish the sounds first.

Of course the code has to be memorized, but they say not to memorize a as a dot and dash, B as a dash and three dots, but to memorize by sound. A dot will sound like "de" and as the sound is prolonged for the dash, the latter will sound similar to "da."

Now learn the alphabet this way. A is "de da", B is "da de do" and so forth down the line. It requires time and patience to learn the code, but the Coshocton boys say it is well worth the effort.

JOHNSON IS NAMED

latter part of their term the director was severely criticized.

This action, and the proposal of the new council to do away entirely with the office of city engineer, and to separate the offices of safety and service director are that to have influenced his resignation. Mayor Tish Saturday expressed himself as satisfied with the work done by Piper.

Johnson's appointment was made for an indefinite length of time. Ordinarily he would be appointed for the remainder of Mayor Tish's term but in view of the proposals being considered by the city council, the nature of the work to be done is uncertain, and a definite appointment can hardly be made, Mayor Tish explained Saturday.

Orto Caton, 1141 Kenilworth-av, was appointed Saturday by Mayor Tish to fill the vacancy created on the board of city civil service commissioners, by the expiration of Charles Lee's term. Lee's term expired Saturday, April 1. Caton is employed as a clerk in the W. H. Ross grocery, 1004 Main-st. He was appointed as a member of the civil service commission, for a period of six years, his term to expire April 1, 1928. The other members of the board are Charles Milligan, 633 south Sixth-st. and Guy Leech, Central court. Milligan's term expires in 1924 and Leech's in 1926.

Enamel Your Woodwork

ENAMEL makes a beautiful as well as an economical finish. Used on woodwork, it makes the room look larger. Has the same effect on furniture.

Its greatest economy lies in the fact that cheaper wood may be used, because the grain is completely covered.

Lowe Brothers Lindero is the most economical enamel because it goes further; therefore it costs less.

Easy to use. Flows on like cream, and clings to edges, and sharp corners without pulling on the brush.

Goes on white and stays white. Has great lastingness.

Bituminous Miners Are Acting Orderly

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 1.—Early reports received here today at headquarters of district five U. M. W., indicated that coal production in the great bituminous counties of western Penna., was at a standstill. No attempt was made to operate union mines and only a few scattered non-union mines in western Penna. were operating. Their gross output is not large.

Forty five thousand union miners and about 15,000 non-union men are out. There has been no disorders or indications of ill feeling. Both sides are inclined to believe that the one with the longest purse will eventually win.

NEW JERSEY FARMERS COMBINE IN PURCHASE OF STAPLE SUPPLIES

By HARRY GODFREY

NEW YORK, April 1.—New Jersey farmers, tired of paying tribute "coming and going" to the interests which control farm supplies at a thru which they have had to market their products, now are organizing not only to market their crops collectively but to buy their supplies cooperatively. Thru a committee of the State Federation of County Boards of Agriculture they are forming a farmers' state purchasing association, thru which county and even smaller groups of farmers will buy their staple supplies.

The exorbitant prices of fertilizer, says a statement by the New Jersey bureau of markets, has driven the farmers to find some means by which they can purchase this and other necessary supplies with "greater economy." The cooperative buying of high-grade fertilizers, it is announced, will be one of the first moves of the organization, and other farm supplies will be added as fast as possible.

However, the New Jersey farmers do not mean to rush into any project which they may find can be attacked by the farm supplies concerns. They are planning their organization carefully with particular regard not only to conform to all legal requirements, but also to strict business principles. The organization now being formed will be a non-profit body, modeled to some extent upon the Grange League federation of New York state, through which members bought more than $3,000,000 worth of supplies last year. Cooperative buying is not entirely new to New Jersey farmers. It has been carried on in a small way by the various state granges, and especially by the Mercer County Cooperative, which has an annual business turnover of $500,000. It is the success of this and other smaller organizations of the same sort in buying high quality supplies at low prices which has impressed the unorganized farmers throughout the state. They plan now to handle their own supplies in great quantities, at lowest market quotations, and to pass the goods along to the individual farmer at the mere cost of handling, without profit.

SUIT TO RENEW JUDGMENT FILED

A suit to revive a judgment for $356.32 has been filed in common pleas court against G. J. McKee by N. C. McKee.

The plaintiff says in her petition, that she is the owner and holder of a judgment obtained against the defendant on March 6, 1915, in the amount of $356.32. Credits on the judgment make the amount due now $77.90. According to the plaintiff, the first payment on the judgment was made March 15, 1917. Since that time the judgment has become dormant.

A new judgment, with interest on $750 from March 15, 1917 is asked by the plaintiff. The plaintiff is represented by Lloyd S. Leach.

Warn Bootleggers

MIAMI, Fla., April.—Charges that some responsible employees of the Florida East Coast R. R. have acted in union with bootleggers in sending liquor out of Florida and that the officials of West Palm Beach, have "tipped off" bootleggers when raids were impending were made today in a statement issued by E. H. Henson, commander of the federal "flying squadron" sent here to "clean up" the coast.

TREMENDOUS THRILL IN SECOND CHAPTER OF TARZAN SERIAL MONDAY AND TUESDAY

"The City of Gold," the title of the second episode of "Adventures of Tarzan," the Elmo Lincoln production now running serially at the Uthina theatre, presents a tremendous thrill as the climax of its exciting action. Elmo Lincoln as Tarzan of the Apes, after successfully combating a horde of wild beasts of the jungle, sets out in search of his sweetheart, Jane Porter, portrayed by the winsome serial heroine, Louise Lorraine. As he reaches the top of a steep hill a slumbering volcano, spitting forth fire and smoke, erupts. The violence of this eruption splits in twain the hillside on which Lincoln is standing and he is precipitated head first into a yawning chasm of smoke and flames. This thrill comes as a climax to a series of breath taking incidents in which Tarzan is the central figure in episode two of "Adventures of Tarzan." The scenes for this episode are laid both in jungleland and in the mystery village termed "The City of Gold."

In addition to our splendid program William Duncan and Edith Johnson, the well known stars will appear in their latest production, "No Defense," a story with a punch, a film of action.

NON-UNION OPERATORS ALLEGE COAL PRODUCTION DEFEATS NATIONAL UNION'S EFFORTS

HUNTINGTON, April 1.—Non union coal miners, stuck to their jobs in Logan, the Norfolk & Western and the Eastern Kentucky coal fields today.

Twenty thousand miners in those fields reported for work this morning, according to railway officials who checked up the three fields.

A continual line of coal trains was rolling out of the Big Sandy valley in Kentucky, the Guyan valley and from the Norfolk & Western district.

The Guyan or Logan field, produce 1,500,000 tons of coal in March, Mingo about 1,000,000 tons, the remainder of the Norfolk & Western about the same while eastern Kentucky's production was slightly less. Operators declared the southern West Virginia and eastern Kentucky fields can produce 7,000,000 tons of coal a month. They believe this would defeat the United Mine Workers' national coal strike.

Officials were keeping a close watch on the Logan and Mingo fields this morning. Particular attention was given the Boone Co. line, between Logan and the Kanawha fields, where the miners' march was hatched last August.

Boone, in the Kanawha field, and Mingo in the Norfolk & Western were considered the larger points.

Mingo, still under martial law, is in charge of a large detachment of state troops and a half dozen tent colonies were expecting recruits from the non-union, but none came according to information received here.

Coal operators in Mingo expressed belief that the population of the tent colonies will fall off appreciably in the next few days as the result of an order cutting down their strike benefits $2.00 "on the head" per week.

COSHOCTON BOY IS BACK FROM FIVE YEARS IN EUROPE

Mrs. Charles Everhart, 220 West Chestnut-st. received word Saturday of the arrival of her son John Ostler, in N. Y. after an absence of five years overseas, with the United States army. Ostler is a brother to Mrs. Lloyd Wilson, north Eleventh-st. and a brother to Charles Ostler, who was killed in an accident at the Clow plant in January of this year.

He came across the ocean on the transport Cambria which bore the last consignment of bodies of American soldiers.

His letter to his mother is reproduced here, in part:

"At last I am back in the world. We arrived today, (March 30) on the transport Cambria, better known as the "Death Ship" for it brot back 1101 bodies of men killed in action. They are the last consignment to come back. All the others will remain in France.

"We were met off Quarantine by the sub boat Tacoma and Mayor Hyland in the police boat Hydan. We were escorted to the dock by bands, for Company A is the only company which went to war in 1917 and stayed until 1922, which is no mean distinction by any means."

Ostler is at present stationed at Fort Jay, New York.
